Resolution for Conservation Congress

The Problem:

We'd like to see Trumpeter Swans come this far south too. But they prefer the cooler climate up in Canada.

The Mute Swans have adapted to this area. To be able to watch them and enjoy them up close is a gift.

They are not a nuisance. They are not hurting habitat or native species.

To eliminate them in hopes that another kind of swan might enter the region, makes no sense.

Be it resolved: The Congress at it's annual meeting held in Kenosha County on Monday, April 16, 2007 recommends that the DNR stop the killing of our Swans.
