

Bear hunters choose bait or dogs

Bear hunters do not have to declare whether they are going to hunt with dogs or bait when they buy their hunting license. This can make it difficult for the DNR to keep good records. They should be required to declare which hunting method they are going to use. Then they would only be able to hunt that season only. This would only apply to the northern zones A, B and D.

Be it resolved that the conservation congress work with the department to require bear hunters to declare whether they are going to hunt over bait or with the use of dogs.
